

COURT: Not many interested in unified government commission

From Front Page

Overcrowding is not a state violation but it can and does cost the county extra expense.

Ballard spoke on five specific areas where improvements could be made. He suggested outsourcing in certain areas as opposed to buying product and obtaining services from local businesses.

Medical services and prescriptions was one area suggested, along with food service. In March of this year, the county had already spent approximately $67,000 on food costs buying supplies locally. Ballard explained that outsourcing this service would save the county around $10,000 per year.

He also discussed phone service, introducing phone cards for the inmates to purchase and use which in turn would enable the county to receive a percentage of the money from the usage of the cards.

Also, suggestions were made to set up a commissary company and by doing so, save money and offset the cost for the county. The county would also receive a percentage of the money placed in the inmates accounts to help offset costs of medical expenses for example.

Besides ways to improve costs for jail services, Ballard discussed the physical improvements that needed to be made to the jail that would help lower utility costs and bring the jail up to state mandated standards.

“There is no quick fix, but we have to save pennies to make dimes, and dollars,” Taylor said.

Ballard brought a lot of information to the table for the court to think about and discuss that will help them in making their decisions concerning the jail.

Irvine Fire Chief, Derrick Muncie, gave a report on the fire department at the meeting as well. So far this year, they have made 186 runs.

Structure fires accounts for 14 of those runs, along with four mutual aid runs, six vehicle fires, 12 woods, brush or grass fires, six trash fires, six downed power lines, 11 unauthorized controlled burns and 70 rescues from vehicle accidents, atv, and water rescues.

He also stated that the department had undergone training through a Wildland Fire Class, Water Safety Class, Traffic and Scene Safety Class and some intense fire attack training using the Training Tower and Burn Trailer.

The county has also received bids for Courthouse Security Cameras, Pole Building and Tone Alert Radios. For the cameras, they received bids from Wise Radio and Electronics of Irvine, for $32,638, and three bids from Alternative Energies of Danville; Est. 110 for $16,691; Est. 111 for $16,586; and Est. 112 for $44,633. For Pole Building, bids were received from S&P Carpets in Richmond for $27,300, and Whitehorse, LLC in Lexington for $85,350.

There were no bids received for the Tone Alert Radios. The court passed to accept the bids into the minutes and to advertise again for bids for the radios.

There were also discussions about the Unified County Government Commission.

Magistrate Gerald Rader stated that he had asked several people about being on the commission and had not found anyone that was interested in it or that even wanted it.

“I think it has potential and would be a good thing to do,” Magistrate Darrell Johnson said.

The court passed to table the discussion to let Irvine and Ravenna see what they wanted to do concerning the matter.

In other business, the court carried to accept the bids into the minutes for voting machines, the 2011 Health Department Tax Rates, the 2011 Conservation District Tax Rates, and the 2011 Ambulance Tax Rates, which all remained the same. They also carried to accept the July Bank Reconciliation Statement, the July Appropriation Transfers, and the July Intrafund Transfers.

COUNCIL: Farmer tells council he will have city workers clean up compared to other towns in terms of it's appearance.

“I don't want to compare Irvine to other cities,” Bryant said. “I want us to have a high standard of our own as a city.”

Williams remarked that the negative things brought to the table by the council are not the member's way of ridiculing the city but rather suggesting ways to improve it.

“We give ideas about how to improve the city and nothing ever gets done,” she said.

All of the council agreed that many of Irvine's citizens do a great job of keeping their own property clean and taken care of.

“We have a lot of people who take good care of their property,” Bryant said. “They deserve our appreciation.”

Farmer included on a list of things to be done around the city several suggestions from Williams, Bryant and Arthur and said he would do his best to ensure they were taken care of.

In other business, Farmer told the council that work on the new fire station is nearing an end as there is only some railing and concrete left to be installed. City workers are still working on curbs, drains and cutting grass.

Several city street signs were stolen and a list has been sent to the county for those to be replaced. Police Chief Brad Smith reported that Irvine Police Officer Adrian McKinney arrested two juveniles in the case. Six street signs were recovered and the juveniles were charged with receiving stolen property.

Thanks for reading the CV&T.

Hospice Care Plus receives BP Fueling Communities grant

Hardy Oil, a BP Branded Marketer servicing BP stations throughout Kentucky, presented a BP Fueling Communities grant donation of $18,750 to Hospice Care Plus.

The BP Fueling Communities program provides grants to local organizations that are nominated by BP's Branded Marketers to support the communities in which they do business.

Fueling Communities gives back to local organizations that support health, education, youth, food and housing to spread charity and goodwill.

Butch Hardy, owner of Hardy Oil, initiated the nomination process. Hardy is a former member of the Hospice Care Plus Board of Directors.

"We are proud to award Hospice Care plus with this grant donation that will help give back to the communities in which they serve and where we do business," said Hardy. "The grant award will be used to fund medical and psychosocial care for those with a serious illness and their families. Though hospice care is partially funded by Medicare, Medicaid and many private insurance companies, the cost of care typically exceeds what these companies cover, and they offer no

"The hospice philosophy is to care for both patient and family, during and after the course of a serious illness," said Brenna Wallhauser, community outreach coordinator at Hospice Care Plus. "Gifts like this one allow us to do that, and to do it in a manner consistent with the wishes and values of the patient and family as they navigate all the medical and other complexities involved with a serious illness."

OPINION

ON THIS PAGE: Columnist Whitney Leggett • Columnist Don White •Letter to the Editor • J.D. Crowe

Columnist says, 'See ya later, Estill County!'

Goodbyes are really hard. The saddest thing about them is that they never get easier. You can say goodbye once and cry and I guarantee if you have to say goodbye to the same people, place or thing a second time, you will cry harder. I can say this from experience because I have cried since I woke up this morning. I have shed tears because I am wrapping up, with this column, another summer at the Citizen Voice & Times.

As corny as it sounds, I hope and pray that this is not my goodbye column to the people of Estill County. I would rather it be a “see ya later” column because I intend to be back. I don’t know if that means I will be back to work at the CV&T, to visit, to live or in some other capacity. I do know, though, that after working here and staying here for this summer, I am not ready to make Irvine a thing of my past.

This summer, this town and this newspaper have forced upon me so much growth. It has been a summer full of firsts, lasts and new beginnings. I have made new friends, developed close working relationships with elected officials, stepped on some toes around the town and I would like to think I brought a few new readers to the Citizen Voice & Times.

I was excited and honored to be invited to fly to Camp Atterbury in Indiana with the Army National Guard on a Blackhawk to visit the troops. I was blessed to be able to cover another Relay for Life event and I wasn’t embarrassed to let people see me cry this time. I learned lessons about staring when I busted my face in the shower and sported a black eye for the first month of the summer.

The CV&T staff has made me feel at home and helped me in so many ways, both big and small. Whether it was praying for me when I fell, giving me directions around town, finding sources for stories or even putting a roof over my head in Estill County for the summer, they have made my summer an unforgettable one.

The people in the county have been encouraging, accepting and friendly in almost every encounter. Even if they didn’t tell me personally, so many people have complemented my work and told me they were happy I was here. That, to me, is the most important thing. If people weren’t noticing that something had changed at the CV&T, then I would not have been doing my job. If it weren’t for the incredible opportunities that my time here has offered me, I would not be able to say that I feel confident in my choice to be a journalist.

As I leave Estill County, I will go back to Eastern Kentucky University as a senior. I will graduate in May and my biggest dream is to end up somewhere that I can make a difference. Making a difference doesn’t mean only making friends and writing about fluffy, happy things. Making difference often involves revealing things, uncovering secrets and stepping on a few toes.

I pray that I have made a difference in Estill County, no matter how small, because it has changed me. I am a more mature, more prepared and more experienced journalist because of the CV&T, it’s staff and the beautiful people of Estill County.

Thank you so much for letting me tell your stories this summer and for always welcoming me with open arms. Like I said, “I’ll see ya later.”

My departure means that the real news editor, Rhonda Smyth, will be back in action this week. She has been out for the summer. I could not have done this without everything she has taught me. For her, I am forever thankful.

Be it a great comedy staged across the river or singing in Nashville, both are music to my ears

There’s not much I like better than a good musical comedy.

Between now and Sept. 25, one of the best you’ll find anywhere is being performed at Derby Dinner Playhouse, just across the river from Louisville in Clarksville, Ind.

Church Basement Ladies features a cast of zany characters that will have you rolling in the aisles with laughter.

No matter if it’s in Estill County, or anywhere else in America, church basement kitchens are the heart and soul of any church.

And, like any great kitchen, problems are solved there as well.

The ladies of Church Basement Ladies handle a Lutefisk Dinner, a funeral, an Easter fundrasier, and a wedding, while staving off potential disasters, sharing and debating recipes, instructing the young, and keeping the pastor on due course.

This hilarious new musical comedy is a celebration of church basement kitchens everywhere and the unsung women who work in them.

To order tickets or learn more, call 812-288-8281 or visit www.derbydinner.com.

If you can’t make it to this show, another of my personal favorites is the Sanders Family Christmas set for Nov. 15-Dec. 31. The songs, including vintage hymns, are outstanding in this family show.

As a child of the 50’s and 60’s, I’m also looking forward to Smokey Joe’s Café Feb. 21 through April 1 of 2012. Songs such as Hound Dog, Yakety Yak and Poison Ivy will be featured.

Last, but not least, say goodbye to gray skies and hello blue by attending a performance of the musical Happy Days April 3 through May 13, 2012.

My wife and I have been attending shows at Derby Dinner for decades, and enjoying every minute of it.

The pre-show buffet is as good as you’ll find anywhere.

Speaking of great shows, we had the good fortune of meeting and listening to some of the greatest country song writers of all time in Nashville last week.

The line up at the world-famous Bluebird Café included people you’ve probably never heard of, but you’ve all heard their music.

I was most impressed by Glenn Douglas Tubb, who told me he is the nephew of the late and great Ernest Tubb. He has written dozens of number one songs, but is most noted for writing “Skip A Rope.” That song has been cut by dozens of artists, including the late Conway Twitty.

It was also a joy to talk with Gerald Smith, a good-ol’ boy if ever there was one. You may recall him in the role of the Georgia Quacker on the old Hee Haw TV shows.

More recently he has penned “What Part Of No Don’t You Understand?” for Lorrie Morgan.

Meeting him got me so torn up I went off and left my Camera and all my lenses.

Be it a play at Derby Dinner or a performance in Nashville, seeing it in person is so much better than watching it on TV.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor,

I am glad the news writer, Whitney Leggett, was one of the two news writers to attend the last Irvine City Council meeting. Whitney reminded us in her article to be on the lookout for the positive aspects of our town. I appreciate the reminder and know that this is a great place to live. The other members of the council, the mayor, and I have chosen to spend most of our lives here and will probably continue to do so. The council members and the mayor also chose to run for office and are in charge of making decisions about the City of Irvine that will affect not only the present, but will have implications for our children and grandchildren. We want to maintain and improve our area for today as well as lay a good foundation for happenings in the future.

We are proud of many aspects of our city, and yet there are many ongoing tasks, actually challenges, that must be done regularly and well to accomplish our goals. There are many aspects of keeping the city going and many leadership styles among the council. We all try to work together to come up with the best way to accomplish the many tasks that we feel are essential, as well as give attention to the many ideas that come from the citizens. Each of us see our citizens face to face out in town and we also receive many phone calls about current concerns. We then meet twice a month as well as special called meetings to bring these needs before the group, always striving for solid, prudent solutions.

We try, from our varied interests and emphases to mesh our concerns and find effective ways to solve problems, and not just chat from time-to-time. I, personally, am a person who has strong convictions about doing things right and well the first time around. I believe in people maintaining their property whether they be owners or landlords. I believe in reminding and pushing citizens to abide by the ordinances of the city, the laws of the state, and nation. I believe the old saying, “A stitch in time saves nine.” I believe in setting goals, making lists, and like Santa Claus, “checking them twice.” I like to get things done.

You have noticed that other council members and I are sometimes passionate and outspoken about solving a particular problem. We do speak up and say what we think. We try to say what we want done clearly and concisely. We have found that sometimes a mere suggestion and discussion produces good results, sometimes it does not. Therefore, we must rephrase and reemphasize the needs as we see them and find another way to accomplish what is necessary and desired. Yes, we do speak up! At times a simple discussion goes into an stern expression of our particular view. The Founding Fathers knew that discussion is necessary in the lives of a free people, and they made it possible for us to talk about things and get the various ideas out in the open. They dreamed that we would be able to arrive at sound, sensible actions based on our discussions. I want to prove them correct.

In closing, let me say that I appreciate the input, suggestions, and support as well as gripes from all those who are interested in seeing our whole area become all we can be. This is a good place to live. I am thankful for our whole area. We have many things going for us. I will do my best to help get other good things going along the way.

ENCOURAGING WORD: THE WAY TO A BETTER LIFE

Howard Coop
Guest Columnist

Over the years, I have talked with many persons who, without going into a great deal of detail, told me that they were dealing with “heart trouble” of some kind. When they used the term “heart trouble,” each one of those persons meant to imply that something was wrong with some part of the circulatory system of the body, and that which was wrong was causing them serious problems. In many cases, a cardiologist had been consulted and the best possible treatment was underway for the problem they faced.

From first hand experience, I understood the situation of those individuals with whom I talked, for I have walked in their shoes, and that experience was not a pleasant one. Over the years, I, too, have had heart trouble. That trouble includes two rather serious heart attacks and quintuple by-pass surgery. On the basis of that experience, I know that heart trouble is a serious problem with which any person has to deal.

But heart trouble can have another very significant meaning, for we use the word “heart” to mean more than the organ that pumps blood through the circulatory system. We use the word to mean the center of one’s inmost thoughts and feelings or the center of the emotions. So, trouble can be found there too, and when it is in that part of the heart, it can cause serious trouble. For centuries, it has been recognized as proverbial that an aching heart can be a serious problem, for it can crush the human spirit.

That doesn’t have to be, for an individual can control, to a large extent, what is in the center of the thoughts, feelings, and emotions. For centuries, it has also been recognized as proverbial that “A happy heart makes a cheerful face” and “A heart at peace gives life to the body.” So, fill the heart with pleasant thoughts, good feelings, and the right emotions. This is the way to a better life.

Chie-Chie's is a win-win for the people of Estill

By Don White
CV&T Staff Writer

Sometimes, a community just gets lucky. That's what happened when Anthony and Chie Worsham decided to make Estill County their permanent home.

Anthony, a Kentucky native, and Chie, who was born and reared in Michigan, have resided on Dry Branch Road since 2006.

But you'll seldom find them hanging around the farm.

As owner-operators of Chie's Mowing, Bush Hogging and Snow Plowing, there aren't many days when they aren't busy.

"When we first moved here, we just sat around for awhile, then we both felt we wanted to do something," says 67-year-old Chie.

Raised in the coal fields of Western Kentucky, Anthony, 50, was living in Michigan when he met the woman who was to become his second wife nearly 20 years ago.

"I met him through my children," says Chie, the mother of six by a previous marriage. Anthony has two grown children.

None of the children live in Kentucky, except Daniel, 27, Chie's adopted son, who lives with his parents and is instrumental in helping run the family business. He and his wife have one son, Damien, three.

The Worshams became familiar with Estill County after Anthony's father, Bobby, re-married and moved to Dry Branch Road, directly across from his son's home.

"Anthony had always wanted to move back home to Kentucky, and it didn't take me long to fall in love with this state when we would travel down to his father's place," says Chie. The more people she encountered in Estill County, the more she came to fall in love. "There are just so many nice people here," she says.

When asked how she came to have such an uncommon name, the not-so-shy Chie says credit for that goes to her grandmother.

"We fell in love with the name after hearing it on the radio. I've always been called Chie-Chie, except when I did something wrong, then it was just Chie."

The couple certainly haven't done anything wrong since becoming an important part of the local area, performing more than their fair share of community service work.

"We take care of maintaining Rising Park for the city of Irvine at no charge, and just prior to the Mushroom Festival, we put mulch around the trees and shrubs to help dress things up," says Chie.

Their handiwork is also in evidence at the county fairgrounds during the annual fair.

Chie, a self-described "city girl" from Grand Rapids, credits her husband, whom she calls "A man of all trades," with helping her to learn the business carrying her name.

"As a kid, Anthony learned how to bush hog from his grandfather, and I've yet to see anything on four wheels he can't operate. He's taught me how to drive all of it," says Chie.

Using their combined expertise, the family undertakes jobs large and small throughout Estill and nearby counties, utilizing four plow trucks, Kabota tractor with backhoe, and an assortment of plows and weedeaters.

Equipment is moved from job to job using a trailer highlighted by drawings of cartoon-like characters.

"People know us by our little men painted on the side of our trailer," says Chie.

At a time when lots of businesses are struggling, Chie-Chie's is going stronger than ever, a blessing she attributes to good, honest work and bending over backwards to accommodate the needs of customers.

"Our prices aren't written in stone, and all our equipment is paid for. We're happy to negotiate and work with the truly needy. You get really attached to your customers," she says, noting the family has undertaken some special projects lately for a woman whose husband is serving in Iraq.

Life is not all work and no play for the Worshams, who enjoy fishing and raising miniature horses.

"We like to travel too.....just pick a direction and go," says Chie.

"Se far he has taken me to Memphis to see Graceland and to New Orleans for Mardi Gras."

Pointing toward the hills from the front porch of their comfortable home, Chie notes she never tires of enjoying and appreciating the beauty of her new Kentucky home.

"When the leaves turn in the fall, it looks like the hills are on fire some evenings when the sun is setting."

Estill kept the pressure on Garrard County by adding their second goal 12 minutes later with another winner from Kayla Patrick. Estill's Sarah Freeman added an exclamation point goal early in the second half to put the Lady Engineers up by the final 3-0 margin.
